

Pre-Print Copy Editor's Notes

From the desk of H.Honcho, Chief Editor, for Handen Outlyze! Handen, get these run-on mistakes cleared up, or we can't run any of these feature stories! Check the box if the questionable sentence is a run-on, and be prepared to tell the editor staff why! Some of these may be okay, Handen, check for run-ons, anyway.

- 1. Martin uses his experience to deal with problems, he's very bright and knowledgeable.
- 2. How she got to the boat, I'll never know, she simply swam until her goal was met.
- 3. Arthur seems to be the perfect employee, for he always shows up on time and stays later than any other worker.
- 4. There could be a crack in the hull of the boat, we looked overboard and saw bubbles emanating from the bow.
- 5. Once the letter was sent, we had no choice but to break up the association and vow to never again speak of it
- 6. Giving back the land the Spaniards stole from the Portuguese was not an option, but the guns from the west made the Spaniards fight ferociously to keep it.
- 7. Looking back on my life has given me several revelations, one of them is that I should never have attempted to rebuild my car's engine by myself!
- 8. Keep your hands on the steering wheel at all times, you never know when your car will hit a pothole and careen you into another lane, always drive safely.
- 9. We went to the mall in the morning and to the restaurant in the afternoon, by the next evening, however, our kids dropped into bed as sleep took them like thieves in the long, dark sorrow of night.
- 10. If I cancel all my calls for this afternoon and tomorrow, I can get some well-deserved time off, the boss, whose loud voice I can actually hear in my sleep, must agree to that simple truth!
